

COTTON MILL OWNERS SEEK LOAN BACKED BY NEW TAXES

Would Float Bonds With Surtax As Security

REFUSAL LIKELY

Move Follows Failure To Obtain Embargo

BY DAVID ARADIE

A despatch from our own Peking correspondent states that the Parliament and the Cabinet are considering the Shanghai cotton spinners' request that the Customs increase of 2½ percent be pledged as security for a bond issue of 30 million taels to rehabilitate the cotton industry.

The cable further reads: "Many members of Parliament favor the request as a means of keeping the Customs increase under Chinese control, but the Powers undoubtedly will refuse to allow the Customs increase to be devoted to that purpose. The Government, through the Walchiaopu, denies restricting mill activity in the Tientsin district, but it seeks some methods of keeping the cotton industry in Chinese hands."

As regards the question of restricting new cotton mills in the Tientsin district to which we referred in our issue of March 14, we might add that a previous message from Peking, but not from our correspondent, stated that an order had been issued prohibiting the registration of any new cotton company in the Tientsin district, the order having been made on the request of the cotton mills in that province. Our correspondent at Peking adds that the Peking authorities are considering the question of keeping the cotton industry in Tientsin in Chinese hands. We might mention that in commenting upon this novel method of interfering with trade in this country we said we suspected that the alleged prohibition order was directed against Japanese enterprise in that direction, and this view, it would seem, is somewhat vaguely supported in the message under question.

NEW SCHEMES

Having been unsuccessful in getting through the Peking Government the enforcement of the embargo on the export of Chinese raw cotton on account of diplomatic difficulties the Chinese Cotton Millowners' Association has been busy propounding other schemes. With the fifteen or so million Hsuan tael increase in Customs revenue that is expected to accrue to the Government on the additional 2½ percent surtax allowed at the Washington Conference, looming large in the horizon, the Chinese cotton mills have deemed it urgent to present their plea for support to the Central Government.

Their petition for financial assistance is somewhat peculiar, the mills being desirous of getting the Peking Government to guarantee a bond issue up to 30 million taels, pledging the increased Customs surtax for the purpose. In other words, the Chinese Cotton Millowners' Association wishes to issue bonds on the British and American markets pledging the property of the particular mills that need assistance, with a further guarantee from the Peking Government that, in case of default, the latter would secure the bondholders.

It might be added that during the silk slump, some three years ago, the Chinese Government lent the sericulturists a million taels out of the Customs surplus. Now the question is not to lend any money—which of course the Government cannot in its present state do—but to pledge the increased Customs duty as additional security for loans that some of the Chinese cotton mills wish to raise in London or New York.

We interviewed yesterday Mr. C. C. Nih, the vice-president of the Association, who went to Peking with Mr. H. Y. Moh a few weeks ago to get the government to consent to the issue of the bonds to relieve the cotton situation.

LABOR ASKS FOR SOCIALISATION OF ALL INDUSTRY

Snowden Verbally Crucifies Capitalism In Speech—Mond Leads Opposition

(Reuters Service)
London, March 21.—Extraordinary interest has been excited by a Labor motion in the House of Commons set down by Mr. Philip Snowden, declaring that the Capitalist system ought to be gradually superseded by the socialization of industry. All non-Labor parties put down amendments.

Shortly before the discussion, Mr. Bonaparte announced that in consequence of the importance of the subject the Government would allot an additional day for the debate after Easter. Mr. Snowden, moving the resolution, indicted capitalism and said that Labor did not propose a revolution and proposed confiscation. He denied that there was any analogy between Socialism and Bolshevism. Sir Alfred Mond set the opposition ball rolling. He defended private enterprise and said that State controlled or State owned industry was inevitably a failure.

Mr. Snowden also introduced a Bill providing for the nationalization of land.

Tale Of Alleged Damaged Hair Is Told In Tls. 20,000 Case In American Court

Mrs. Kitty Ren Claims Shampoo Ruined Bunnet Tresses—Dozen Witnesses Testify Pro And Con—Defence Presents Evidence Today

Hairdressing in all its phases and ramifications formed the central theme of the proceedings in the United States Court for China before Judge Charles Sumner Lobingier yesterday when the case in which Mrs. Kitty Ren, wife of Mr. S. T. Ren, well known Chinese business man, is suing the American Drug Company for Tls. 20,000 damages came up for hearing.

Mrs. Ren, who is represented by Mr. F. J. Schuhl, of Schuhl and Schoenfeld, alleges that as the result of using a coconut shampoo manufactured and sold by the defendant company her hair was ruined and her hair fell out and changed color.

Mr. Sidney Moss of Haskell and Moss, appearing for the drug company, puts in a general denial of the allegations, contending

COUNCIL PLANS COMPETITION FOR NEW RICSHA TYPE

Pressed Steel Vehicle Is Recommended By Police Commissioner

A scheme for a competitive submission of plans for a new, more satisfactory type of public ricksha has been approved by the Municipal Council, following its submission by the Commissioner of Police, according to announcement in today's Municipal Gazette. The Commissioner suggested that prizes of Tls. 500, Tls. 200 and Tls. 200 be offered, in view of the difficulty of obtaining the best results from ricksha builders. He believes that a stamped metal body on the lines of the latest American motor cars would prove more economical and satisfactory than the present type of vehicle and that the following out of the suggestion for a competition will have the merit of interesting the public in one of the most important matters with which the Council has to deal and may also be the means of bringing out fresh and valuable ideas not found previously in ricksha construction. The Council, after considering the matter, recorded approval and directed that the French Council be communicated with for an expression of its views and inquiry as to whether it would contribute toward the suggested prizes.

As regards ricksha tariff, the Commissioner of Police recommends that the present scale be maintained for old rishas and that the tariff for the new class of vehicles be exactly double. The period of time for which the existing type of ricksha is to be permitted to operate is considered best not to rule upon until the utility of the new type has been demonstrated. On suggestion of the Commissioner the Council has decided that the tentative date for the new regulations to come into force be altered from May 1 to July 1, in view of the delay likely to occur in obtaining plans and building the new type of ricksha and in order to give present and new owners sufficient time to consider the new conditions under which rishas are to be run.

WU PEI-FU WINS CABINET FIGHT ON TREATY ISSUE

Mandate Names Loyang Followers—House Demands Peking Refuse Japan's Reply

(Reuters Pacific Service)

Peking, March 21.—A Mandate issued at midnight appointed General Shen Hung-yung Tull of Kwangtung and General Sun Chuan-fang Tull of Fukien. The Mandate also appointed General Yang Hsi-min Associate Director of Military Affairs at Canton; General Chen Chung-ming's brother Commander of the First Division at Canton; Admiral Wen Chue-tesh Admiral at Canton; and General Wang Yung-chuan Associate Director of Military Affairs in Fukien. There were other minor appointments. All followers of General Wu Pei-fu and Chen Chung-ming. The Cabinet has thus entirely yielded to General Wu Pei-fu's demands.

Peking, March 21.—The House of Representatives today passed a resolution by a large majority urging the Government to refuse to accept Japan's reply to the Treaty of 1915. This will be forwarded to the Cabinet this evening. A second resolution was also passed, asking the Government to inform Japan that China is dissatisfied with the Japanese reply with regard to the Twenty-One Demands.

(Reuters Pacific Service)

Peking, March 21.—Last night's mandate created considerable surprise in political circles. Dr. Sun Yat-sen's followers are indignant and are expected to start a vigorous opposition against the Cabinet and may bring a non-confidence vote in the House this afternoon. Various political bodies are holding special meetings this afternoon to decide on their course of action in view of the latest developments. A number of Members of Parliament are sending a circular telegram to the Provinces denouncing the Cabinet owing to the alleged failure of its foreign policy, especially with reference to the 1915 Treaty.

This circular states that both Houses asked the Government to declare the Treaty null and void, instead of which the Government merely asked Japan to discuss the Treaty with a view to abrogation. The Government thus virtually admitted the existence and validity of the Treaty whereas the action demanded would have meant that China had not recognized its existence. The telegram states that the Premier admitted failure at the secret session on Monday.

Some of the vernacular papers state that a vote of censure may be moved in Parliament against the Premier for the alleged general failure of his foreign policy and that this may lead to the fall of the Cabinet shortly.

British Women's Association Holds Its Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of the British Women's Association, held yesterday afternoon at Headquarters, the interest and comprehensive review of the past year's activities was given by Mrs. E. M. Gull, Chairman, the new Executive Committee was named and various reports were received, including that of the Sub-Committee having to do with the proposed residence for British girls.

The newly elected Executive Committee is as follows: Miss P. Ayrton, Mrs. Burton Sayer, Mrs. A. C. Clear, Miss Cardwell, Mrs. J. W. Dover, Mrs. O. M. Greim, Mrs. E. M. Gull, Miss M. C. Hyland, Mrs. H. Y. Irvine, Mrs. D. MacGillivray, Mrs. G. Matheson, Mrs. E. H. McMichael, Miss Murphy, Mrs. H. G. Simms, Miss Summerkill, Mrs. C. J. F. Symons, Mrs. T. E. Truman and Mrs. H. P. Wilkinson. Mrs. Gull said in part: Ladies—It is my honor and privilege to report to you on the work and activities of the British Women's Association during the second year of its existence: to analyse perhaps the things we set out to accomplish, the things we have actually done, and the things we have left undone. "In regard to numbers, we have not made any great advance. "We have now a total membership of 1,172, of which 936 members only have yet paid up last year's subscription. "In regard to members' subscriptions, I have just received a letter from Mrs. Dorothy Lee suggesting that more stringent rules should be drawn up in regard to the 236 members who have forgotten to pay their subscriptions. She says, in effect, that the virtuous suffer for the guilty and this is perfectly true, reminiscent, in fact, of that un-fair episode connected with the prodigal son's return."

ENTERTAINMENTS
Mrs. Gull then spoke of the entertainments arranged or participated in by the B. W. A. or its sections during the past year, including such highly successful affairs as the reception to Sir Edward and Lady Pearce; the Barton; the garden party in June at the home of Mrs. Percy Liddell; the Entertainment Committee's tea dance in January; the luncheon to Mrs. Wellington Koo; the parties to Miss Kathleen Parlow, Miss Belbin and Mrs. Cromarty; the entertainment of Miss Mary Dingman, Industrial Secretary to the World's Committee, Y. W. C. A.; an "at home" for Mrs. Billingshurst, and various other functions. "In order to suggest that the Association is not just working for its own ends and amusement, I would like to pass in brief review our effort in co-operation in the life of the community. The needs of the Foreign Women's Home are borne very much in mind. The splendid achievements of the King's Daughters' Society stimulate us to lend a hand whenever it is in our power to do so and I think I may say that we have by no means failed in this regard. The Ladies Benevolent Society has not been forgotten among the beneficiaries of some of our sections. Your Chairman sits on the Girl Guides Committee and the Cadet Corps of the Girl Guides occupies one of our attic rooms at Headquarters for a nominal rental of one dollar per month. Your Executive Committee too have been asked to take over the funds of the (now defunct) Private Nurses Association, and this it has agreed to do. "Thanks to the generous and cordial manner in which the senior organization has come forward, it has been possible and very pleasant to exchange hospitalities, as well as to co-operate in several directions, with the American Woman's Club and when the report of the Social Service Board is read, you will learn that joint meetings with the A. W. C. and the Shanghai Women's Club have been held in connection with the subject of child labor in factories. "A certain amount of organized assistance in connection with teaching English to, and providing clothes and money for, the Russian cadets was given early in the year. "IN REPRESENTATIVE "I have said, and I have written many times, that it has been from the very first the policy of those who actually started the B. W. A. and who now, elected by the members, form the Executive, it has been the policy to make the Executive as truly and genuinely representative of every section of British women in the Community as possible. It has certainly been my own ideal from the very first that this Association with its great possibilities and future should never be run by a clique or get into a groove. And with care and discretion on the part of the membership when they make their nominations to committees, it never will. "Your outgoing Executive has recorded an excellent attendance during the year. There have been 24 meetings with an average attendance of over 14. In transmitting the annual report, I would like to ask any similar organization, 'Can you beat it?' Mrs. Symons will probably never forgive me when I tell you that she has not missed a single meeting. 24 out of 24 being her record. After that it is superfluous to remark that we have always had a quorum, usually a double one or more. "THANKS SECTIONS "I think my Committee would like me to extend their thanks to the officers and members of sections for the very courteous and generous manner in which they have fallen in with suggestions

BERLIN'S BUDGET

Deficit Runs Into Trillions Of Marks, Says Minister

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

London, March.—It is reliably reported here that Germany and France are "unofficially but directly negotiating, through Switzerland, for a settlement of the Ruhr situation."

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Berlin, March 20.—It is announced here that Germany sent a memorandum on the Ruhr situation to both Great Britain and the United States last Friday, with a notation that they could forward it to France if they wanted to.

(Reuters Service)

Berlin, March 20.—A representative of the Ministry of Finance announced in the Reichstag today that the budget for 1932 showed a deficit of 7,100,000,000,000 paper marks or 6,200,000,000,000 more than was estimated last autumn. He said that this was the result of the depreciation of the mark and the occupation of the Ruhr which had driven the budget into billions and billions of expenditure in a deficit against which the Government was helpless. The Government's financial program had been torn to shreds.

(Reuters Service)

Paris, March 20.—It is reported from Cologne that the Inter Allied High Commission has ordered 184 fresh expulsions of officials and suspended 21 German newspapers in the occupied territory, in addition to the 82 previously dealt with. The Commission has decided to press inquiries regarding the attack on Herr Smets and to withdraw the matter from the jurisdiction of the German authorities in view of its relation to the safety of the occupied territory. The Commission also is considering the establishment of a special military tribunal similar to those instituted in Upper Silesia.

(Reuters Service)

Cologne, March 20.—Herr Joseph Smets is not dead. On the contrary, it is believed that there is a chance of his recovery. The bullet has been extracted from the brain.

Several arrests have been made in connection with the attempted murder but complicity has not been proved and the actual assailant has not been discovered.

(Reuters Service)

London, March 20.—Speculation is busy with regard to the chances of the latest peace feeler. The American Government has declined to disclose the contents of the recent German Note notwithstanding Germany's hint that she does not object to publication or communication to Mr. Poincare.

Official American circles point out that the German Charge d'Affaires at Paris can furnish Mr. Poincare with the information he desires to do so. The movements of Baron D'Abernon, the British Ambassador at Berlin, and Mr. Montagu Norman, the Governor of the Bank of England, are also being closely watched. According to the French newspapers, London today, bears an official message from Herr Cuno although official circles in London deny that any political significance attaches to the visit.

With regard to Mr. Montagu Norman, who is at present some where on the Continent, the authorities are unusually reticent. Reuters' correspondent at Paris announces that Mr. Norman arrived in Paris yesterday and discussed the terms of recovery of certain British credits, after which his movements are uncertain. It is reported that he has left for Berlin.

THIRD WEEK IN "Y" DRIVE FOR MEMBERS END

All Teams Dig In To Go
"Over The Top" By
Saturday

The Y. M. C. A. membership and financial campaign closed its third week last night with a total of 34,000 points, or dollars, having been received in membership fees and contributions. The final drive starts from now until Saturday, when the campaign closes.

The leading team this week was the Chingchow team led by Mr. M. N. Yang of Butterfield and Swire, with 3,159 points. The Chingchow team, led by Mr. C. P. Fong, vice chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, was second with 2,877 points, and the Yenchow team, led by Mr. Walter Chen was third with 2,195 points.

The three weeks' campaign was won by the Yenchow team, with Chingchow second, and Suchow third.

The half of the Association was filled with an interested group of members who watched with enthusiasm the record of points thrown on the screen, each cheering for his own team.

While there are about 500 workers in this year's effort, yet the task of raising $60,000 has not been an easy one, mainly because of adverse business conditions particularly in some lines from which in previous years liberal contributions have been received.

It was emphasized last night that heroic efforts would have to be made during the next three days if the goal is to be reached. The Association has had fifteen annual campaigns and in each one the "Y" has gone "over the top." It is expected that friends will rally before the close on Saturday night and assist the organization to enter another year with the budget fully provided.

The Association does not confine its efforts to the building but carries on a net work of activities in various parts of the city. Schools were conducted during the past year in Dixwell Road, Kashing Road, Frenchtown, and schools for boys, girls, men and women at Footing. This was in addition to 1350 students accommodated at the central building on Szechuen Road. These latter schools are given largely to commercial education. The Y. M. C. A. has trained the major portion of the young men in foreign business firms in Shanghai during the past twenty years of its day and evening school work.

The annual budget for 1923 is $195,825. Of this sum $23,218 must be secured in contributions. The balance is paid by members in membership dues, educational fees in rentals from the building and facilities for which a charge is made. In ordinary years nearly all of the contributions are made by the Chinese themselves who have been generous in their support. Probably no other organization in Shanghai has done as much as the Y. M. C. A. in promoting liberal giving among the Chinese community and its subscription list contains the names of many of the leading business men of Shanghai. During last year the Association received $7,000 from each of two Chinese subscribers, one subscription of $1,500, and sixty-seven contributions ranging in amount from $100 to $1,000. Governor Lu of Chekiang gave $1,000 and Civil Governor Chi of this province $500. One subscription of $300 was sent in by mail from the Christian General, Feng Yu-Huang.

NEED THE MONEY
This year, however, is a critical year with the Association owing the fact that many contributors, owing to depression in certain lines of business, are not able to respond as usual. This will mean that new friends must be found and that those who have given in previous years may renew their gifts. For the first time a special appeal is being made to foreign firms who after all are interested in giving because they desire to have provided for their employees a place where their employees can spend their time in healthful surroundings and in many cases get the benefit of special training to make them more efficient.

That the Association is appreciated by the young men for whom it is intended is shown by the fact that during past year the attendance at the gym classes has reached a total of 48,421. The attendance at swimming 24,253 and the total number of baths 159,938. Religious meetings were attended by an average of more than 1,000 per week and Bible classes by an equal number. The membership stands at about 4,500, men of all provinces and speaking all of the native dialects of the country, but all united and meeting frequently in the Association.

It is interesting that this past year, so long after the conclusion of the World War the Association secured 1,988 jobs for members of the Labor Battalions who returned from France. It has only been within a few weeks that this bureau established and operating for three years in behalf of these men could be closed. It seems now that all the men have returned from France and have been scattered back among their own people.

Friends of the Association who have not been seen by the solicitors are asked to send their membership fees or contributions to the Secretary, 120 Szechuen Road. An audited statement of accounts for the past year and a copy of the budget for 1923 will be provided upon application.

Heavy Year's Work Accomplished By St. Luke's Hospital

A total of 72,659 patients are recorded in the report of the St. Luke's Hospital for Chinese for the year ended December 31, 1922, as shown by statistics just published.

The aggregate of cases includes 52,450 surgical out patients, 17,624 medical out patients and 2,581 in patients.

As an indication of the tremendous financial strain put upon the institution, Dr. John H. Snook, superintendent, remarks in his report that 25 percent of all in patients were treated free, while 12 percent of the out patients were treated without charge. In addition to this, 53 percent of all surgical and 42 percent of all medical cases paid less than one-fifth of their actual cost to the hospital; 18 percent of both medical and surgical cases paid less than half their actual cost and only 3 percent of all surgical and 14 percent of all medical cases paid actual cost or more. In view of these figures it is necessary to call upon the public for subscriptions and it has been necessary to raise the ward rates to fifty cents per day, which is about half the actual cost.

The high percentage of bed occupancy indicates that the hospital was nearly always full. For the year 87 percent of all medical beds and 91 percent of all surgical beds were full all the time. These figures include private, semi-private and ward beds. If the latter only were considered the percentage would be very much higher.

A full list of subscriptions is given in the report, which is the fifty-sixth, and also the summary of receipts and payments.

RADIO WAVES

How Speech Is Carried Without Wires—What Wave Length Is—Speed of Radio Waves

BY M. J. GRAINGER

Radio Expert, formerly with Westinghouse and U. S. Navy.

How does a radio phone work? How is speech carried without wires? How do numberless receiving sets pick up the messages or music from the same broadcasting station?

Questions like these puzzle many people who have only recently, through the radio phone, become interested in matters in matters electrical.

By the use of a little analogy I will try to make clear just how the human voice and music are sent radiating out into the night air and are picked up from places at all points of the compass.

Imagine that a small pebble has been thrown into a big pond. Tiny ripples commence to circle out from the point of contact. Next a good sized brick has been cast into the water.

Instead of ripples miniature waves are set rolling in ever-widening circles.

Perhaps the wavelets, both the big ones and the smaller fellows, meet a rock or some other obstacle sticking out of the water. Where the ripples hit the obstruction they are momentarily bent. But they proceed on their way just the same.

Now you can liken the message thrown into the water to the transmitter. The sticks showing above the surface of the water are the receiving stations. The rock is like the powerful broadcaster; the pebble a small station.

Tall buildings, trees and other obstructions, absorb some of the power of the other waves just as obstructions met with on the surface of the pond weaken, to some extent, the force of the water waves that strike them.

Radio waves are like these communications set up on the surface of a pond. Just as the water waves are so many inches apart, so are the other waves. Other waves are measured in meters.

When you say that the wave is 360 meters long you mean that measured from crest to crest the wave is that many meters in length.

PERPETUAL MOTION
But while waves set up on a lake will gradually die out until they completely disappear, the scientists have a theory that other waves never cease to exist when they are once set in motion. They go on traveling into space for ever.

Were there receivers sensitive enough to detect them they would be picked up thousands of years after they had been set free and trillions of miles away from the transmitter, for other waves move at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.

Now let me attempt to visualize for the reader just how these "wave-lengths" are utilized in the operation of wireless telegraphy. I am indebted to the Ship Owners' Radio Service, Inc., for the following exceedingly clear and interesting explanation of how the different wave-lengths are prevented from interfering with each other:

We might compare four radio transmitting stations to four singers on a single stage. As long as the quartette sang together everything would be fine. But suppose that the tenor sang "Home Sweet Home," the soprano, "Bubbles," the basso, "Annie Laurie" and the contralto, "The Star Spangled Banner" all at the same time. The result would be what, in radio parlance, is referred to as "interference."

TUNING OUT
Now suppose that you had in your pocket a little device that, when placed against your ears and properly adjusted, would exclude the basso, contralto, and tenor voices, but would allow the soprano voice to pass. The result would be that you would hear only the clear soprano strains of "Bubbles," unmixed by the bedlam of "Annie Laurie," "Home Sweet Home," and "The Star Spangled Banner." You would simply turn the knob on your little device a bit and it would exclude the basso, tenor, and soprano, but pass the contralto voice, and you would hear your favorite song, undisturbed by the soprano "Bubbles," or any other.

If the singers were compared to radio stations, and you called the soprano voice a "200-meter wave length," the tenor a "600-meter wave length," the contralto a "360-meter wave length," and the basso a "1200-meter wave length," and your little pocket device you compared to a radio receiver, the analogy would be complete.

In order that a number of radio stations in the same vicinity may transmit signals at the same time and not interfere with one another, one will transmit on a 200-meter wave length, another on 360 meters, another on 600 meters, another on 1200 meters, and so on. In order that a radio receiving station may listen any station at will, the receiving instrument is provided with one or more adjusting knobs or switches, so that the "wave length" of the receiver may be adjusted to correspond with the wave-length of the station it is desired to hear. This process is known as "tuning."

The wave-length range has no direct bearing on the distance over which a sending station may be heard. This depends on the power used by the transmitting station, and the sensitiveness of the receiving instrument, just as in the theater analogy, a partially deaf man in the front row could not hear as well as the man in the back row who had good hearing. If the partially deaf man went to the back row, he might not hear at all unless the singer fairly shouted. The loudness of the singing would compare with the "power" of a transmitting station, and the degree of deafness would compare with the sensitiveness of a receiver.

To carry the theater analogy one step farther, suppose that one man in the audience sat directly behind a large pillar. He would probably not hear the singing as well as the man who sat in the open. Tall steel buildings, abrupt hills, etc., obstruct radio signals in a somewhat similar manner, and that is why the amateur who lives among skyscrapers will not get quite as good results as the amateur who lives among two or three-story buildings, or, better still, out in the country.

WAVE LENGTHS
The term "wave-length range," as I have said, has nothing to do with the range in miles. Wave-length is simple to understand. Messages from the transmission stations are sent in the form of electrical energy. The actual length of these waves may vary from 160 to 26,000 meters. To receive a broadcasting station which you know transmits on a wave length of 360 meters, you simply tune your receiver to 360 meters. You should then receive only that one station. To receive stations sending on a longer or shorter wave-length, adjust your receiver accordingly. Every receiving instrument has a certain wave-length range, which means that it provided, of course, the transmitting stations are within the range in miles of the receiving apparatus.

The different wave-lengths make it possible to send different messages at the same time without undue confusion.

The range in miles depends on the power of the transmitting station, the sensitiveness of the receiver, and local conditions. This makes it impossible to specify the exact range in miles of any particular outfit.

Deaton And Chang Take Over Affairs Of Radio Corporation

Mr. Bruce C. R. Deaton, the radio engineer who recently arrived from the United States, and Mr. K. L. Chang, of Shanghai, have taken over the affairs of the Radio Corporation of China in the Dollar building, according to an announcement made last night. Mr. E. G. Osborn, formerly a partner, is no longer connected with the organization.

Mr. Deaton announced last night that the Radio Corporation would continue to function as usual, broadcasting concerts and selling radio receiving sets. Mr. Osborn's dropping out of the firm, he said, would make no difference in the business.

P. AN PROCESSION TO DEMONSTRATE AGAINST TREATY

Mass Meeting Sunday To Inveigh Against Twenty-One Demands

Local Chinese students, merchants and laborers to the number of 20,000 will parade on Sunday as a demonstration in connection with the demand for the reprocurement of Port Arthur and Dairen through abrogation of the Japanese Treaty of 1915, according to plans being formed by the National Diplomatic Society.

It is planned to hold a mass meeting at the Wu Chun-yang military drill ground—near the Shanghai South Railway station, the parade to follow.

According to the manifesto issued by the Society, the Twenty-One Demands pact is invalid because it was never ratified by parliament and the message urges the people to back up the Government in its declaration that the treaty is null and void.

The Shanghai Chinese General Chamber of Commerce has telegraphed to the Senate and the House of Representatives, urging the legislators to issue a statement to the Powers vindicating the stand of the Chinese Government in connection with the proposed abrogation of the Twenty-One Demand Treaty. The telegram repudiates the arguments advanced by the Tokio Government in support of its rejection of the Chinese proposal.

According to a report in circulation in local Chinese business circles, the indignation felt by the Chinese people in consequence of the rejection by the Tokio Government of the Chinese proposal for the cancellation of the "inhumane treaty" has already had unfavorable effect upon the Japanese yarn market.

Being apprehensive that a boycott against Japanese goods may result in the event of the Japanese Government persisting in its stand, local Chinese merchants hesitate to replenish their stocks with Japanese. The import of cotton clothes this week shows a decrease of 257 bales as compared with the quantity imported last week. The import of cotton yarn also decreased by 1,084 bales during the past week, it is claimed.

CHINESE CHARGED WITH IMITATING B.C.C. CIGARETTE

Fraudulent imitation of certain British Cigarette Company trademarks was charged against three Chinese who appeared before Assessor Mead and Magistrate Loh at the Mixed Court yesterday.

The first accused, one Wong Fung-tsoo, a shopman, is alleged to have been in possession of and to have sold quantities of imitation "Chien Men" and "Baby" cigarettes at 132 Cunningham Road. The other two accused, Tsang Tsou-ching and Tsang Tsou-tsang, described as proprietors of the Li Hsing cigarette factory in Boone Road, are alleged to have manufactured the false brands and sold them to Wong.

Mr. A. L. Dickson and Mr. Kennett are appearing to prosecute the case and Mr. Fleming appeared yesterday on behalf of Mr. Haskell for the two factory managers. The testimony of a hawk who bought cigarettes from Wong was taken and the case was remanded, the first accused being placed under $250 shop security and the others under security of $500 each.

Cotton Mill Men Seeking New Loan

"These cotton mills that need money," Mr. Nieh went on to explain, "will offer their mill properties as first charge with the Customs increase as an additional protection to the bondholders. We have asked the Peking Government whether they would guarantee the issue up to 30 million taels, and when we get this guarantee we shall put the issue on Chinese and foreign markets. Thirty million is not to be issued at one time. The Government is quite willing to help the industry."

CANNOT BE SET ASIDE

In our opinion it is certain that the two-and-a-half percent surtax cannot be set aside for such a purpose as there was a distinct undertaking to the Powers at the Washington Conference that the surtax was not to be allocated for any purpose whatever until the Commission, which is to be convened in Peking sometime during the year, decides what surtax is to be given and for what purpose it should be allocated.

There is, however, no doubt that the Chinese cotton mill industry does require financial assistance at this time, and if the Customs could find some other revenue which the Government could set aside for the purpose of guaranteeing such a bond issue we are of the opinion that it would undoubtedly be a very good thing to do. It would prevent such an important industry, in which the very best Chinese have invested such a large sum as a hundred million taels, from falling into the hands of foreign investors.

We understand—not from the Chinese Cotton Association, however—that one of the objects of this bond issue will be to undertake extensive cultivation of cotton, the shortage of which, apart from the political situation which makes transportation insecure, is one of the principal causes of the losses that mills have to face.

However, with a world shortage of cotton, if the Chinese Government can work out some scheme whereby the Maritime Customs get control of funds to guarantee a bond issue, whether it is 30 or 50 million taels, which have as one of its objects the extensive cultivation of cotton in China it would be a step in the right direction. It would be the first time then that the Government of China would have undertaken a constructive policy towards its merchants and industrialists.

And we would, however, venture to say that with the Customs guarantee they would be no difficulty to float such a bond issue on the foreign markets. Perhaps, even the Consortium might look upon the bond issue with favor as it would go a long way to show to the Chinese Government that there is any amount of money available for constructive purposes, whereas the Consortium will not loan any money to the Chinese Government as long as such government is not representative of China.

Another Suspect In Poisoning At Hangchow Jailed

The only development in the sensational poisoning case at the First Normal School of Chekiang at Hangchow was the arrest of one Wei Li-tang, a barber-shop keeper. Wei's mother-in-law is the sweet-heart of Chien Ah-li, one of the cooks in custody, who is suspected to be involved in the case. An order for the arrest of the woman was issued Tuesday. As it was impossible to find her, though she was understood to stay in the barber shop, Wei was arrested.

The school will resume classes on Saturday, according to a notice issued by Mr. Ho Ping-lin, the principal. A memorial service for the unfortunate victims who lost their lives, through eating the poisoned rice will be held in the school on April 1.

The activities of the Association for the coming season will be centered in the beautiful garden of the Majestic Hotel on Bubbling Well Road, the former McBain estate, where two perfect courts will be laid out, stands erected, and ample dressing rooms and showers provided for players.

In making the announcement, Sir Skinner Turner expressed the thanks of the Association to the local clubs for their generosity. He said that members of the various clubs here had been frequently taxed by the requests of the Tennis Association but had always been very gracious and hospitable.

The President said that the courts would be ready for the finals of all championships next summer and indoor and exhibition games would also be staged there. "In time, they will be the best courts in Shanghai," he said.

The mixed doubles tournament will start on June 2, ladies doubles and mixed doubles get away on June 15, the tennis leagues will stage its matches in July and August, the men's doubles and singles championship tournaments are carded to start early in September and the ladies singles will be staged in October.

Prior to adjourning the meeting, Sir Skinner Turner expressed the thanks of the Association to donors of cups and trophies, the retiring secretary, M. B. Brown, who leaves for England shortly; to Mr. Reginald Brown for auditing the accounts, and to Teammaster E. P. Graham Barrow of the Cathedral School for the use of the building for the meeting. A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. M. B. Brown, was accorded Judge Sir Skinner Turner for presiding.

Shanghai Life And Scout Activities To Be Program Features

Boys Scouts and Wolf Cubs of the city will appear in an unusual demonstration and entertainment this afternoon at the Olympic Theater when many phases of scouting will be seen and a delightful variety program is to be staged. The curtain will rise at 5.30 o'clock and a crowded house will watch the acts for the show has occasioned much interest.

It will be worth seeing, too, as the Scoutmasters and boys have put in a great deal of hard work, aided by Mr. E. P. Graham-Barrow of the Cathedral School and Mrs. Chris Wingrove. Mr. G. H. Parkes has also assisted and will be in one of the numbers.

Today's program will be under the patronage of the British Consul-General, Mr. Sidney Barton; Sir Skinner Turner, Judge of the British Supreme Court and Lady Turner and Sir Edward and Lady Pearce.

The demonstration will do much to attract attention to the great work being carried on by the scoutmasters and it is hoped that it will interest others in helping out in the work as scoutmasters, submasters, cubmasters, instructors and examiners are badly needed.

The complete program for this evening follows:

British Women's Association Holds Its Annual Meeting

for the application of their funds. It has meant a very great deal to the Executive to feel that they had this loyal support, especially in view of the fact that sections have a perfect right to do what they like with their own money.

RESIDENCE SCHEME

"Now as to the B.W.A. Residence scheme. You will remember that eleven months ago we called an open meeting of members interested in the subject of a B.W.A. Residence and that some 50 or 60 members responded. The description of accommodation that British women were most in need of and of the amount which they would be in a position to pay, was made into very thoroughly and the number was that a certain number of those present gave a provisional guarantee that if such a house were rendered available, they would live in it.

"I do not wish to forecast the sub-Committee's report, but I should like to say that under the leadership of Mrs. Trueman, the members of the sub-Committee who have had the co-operation of such women as Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Heenan, Miss Dolbin and Mrs. Cromarty—the sub-Committee have left no stone unturned to accomplish the desired end, and to the present, without solving the problem.

"There is, however, another aspect which is nearly related to it, and that is Her Quarters. Shanghai people are notoriously luxurious and I would like a good many of them to go and live in London for a bit—I don't mean in the big hotels. There is a good deal of grumbling about the wretched entrance to our Headquarters—the dirty staircase over which we have no control and the number of steps to be climbed to our front door.

DUES ARE LOW

"Well, this is all admitted, and if you want to remedy it, if you want a nice cheery, plate-glass and bronze Otis elevator to a spacious flat overlooking the Whangpoo, it is all in your own hands. All you have to do is to come forward with your voluntary subscriptions. I ask you? Do any of you know of any club or institution in the world that is not subsidised and therefore carries the taint of philanthropy, that is run on a subscription of $5.00 a year?"

After expressing the organization's heartfelt thanks to its many "men friends"—such as the Advisory Committee, legal advisers, the Council and heads of its departments, chairmen of the various men's clubs who were of assistance, and to the Press, Mrs. Gull turned to the review for the year of the activities of the various Sections.

GARDENING SECTION

"To turn now to the sections, taking them in order of seniority and beginning with the Gardening Section. The membership of the Gardening Section is 115. It has held thirteen meetings, either lectures or demonstrations, visits to gardens for practical work, etc. The average attendance at these has been from 25 to 45. The section plays its part in the social service of the B.W.A. and takes it in turn right through its membership to provide flowers for the poor wards, at the General Hospital, in conjunction with the Kings Daughters, who arrange and distribute them. The Gardening Section has also presented vases to headquarters and provided and arranges the flowers there. On the occasion of the reception to Mrs. Barton the section contributed very materially to the success of the afternoon in holding their dahlias show then. The fine exhibits proved what excellent results could be achieved by amateurs and dahlias cultivation in Shanghai undoubtedly received considerable stimulus from the display. The ensuing reason will probably see a scheme for supplying clean vegetables, principally lettuce, to members in connection with which notices will shortly be published.

SPORTS SECTION

"The Sports Section has developed considerably during the past year and its achievements in one and another direction have reflected much credit on the Association.

"It may be remarked that this Section has not been in a position to share in the philanthropic side of the Association, but it will be readily understood that expenses connected with the various sports are heavy and that there is nothing peculiarly profitable about them. The Section has lately come into line with other Sections in imposing a general membership fee of one dollar annually in addition to subscriptions to the Tennis, Hockey and Badminton Clubs as necessitated by expenses. The total membership is about 120.

LITERARY SECTION

"The Literary Section started with lofty ideals and has not found it necessary to descend from them. Many of the papers have maintained a high standard and been distinguished for very real literary merit. Without being invidious one may say that it was sheer literary appreciation which led the Section to seek for a repetition of an exceptionally valuable lecture read quite recently. "During the season 14 meetings have been held at HQ, with the exception of Mrs. Irwine's lecture on "Old Furniture," when she entertained members to tea at her house; and Mrs. Ayscough's paper on Chinese poetry for which, on account of its being illustrated by lantern slides, the R. A. S. Hall had to be requisitioned.

"The Section has survived a considerable "swapping of horses in Midstream" in that the Chairmanship has changed hands no less than three times during the season. Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Gouling and Mrs. Billingham having occupied the position. The annual meeting took place a few days ago and Mrs.—was elected to fill this office. It would not be in keeping with literary tradition to find this section rolling in money but the fact that it contributed 50 percent of its total assets to the Entertainment Committee's Funds at the end of last year was very deeply appreciated. This Section has just over 100 members on its roster.

MUSICAL SECTION

"I suppose that no one section exercises such power for broadening sheer pleasure as the Musical, and, under the able Chairmanship of Mrs. McMeekin, an admirably arranged season has just been completed. The section numbers 162 members and has carried through a series of delightful concerts, nine out of the 12 having already taken place.

ART SECTION

"The Art Section which started life in a somewhat weakly condition, has blossomed out in a most satisfactory manner during the past year having transferred their energies from theory to practice with real determination. The list of people in Shanghai capable of and willing to lecture on subjects artistic is not a very long one, but the opening of Mrs. Macleod's Studio, to such members as were able to avail themselves of it for sketching from the life, went a long way to make up for the lack of lectures.

LANDS ASSOCIATES

"To Mrs. Macleod, the first Chairman of the Section, is much gratitude. Her hospitality, ready and kindly criticism, to say nothing of her inspiring personality, will not readily be forgotten by the Section.

"To Mrs. Frost (who succeeded Mrs. Macleod as Chairman) is due the credit of having organised a most practical piece of work: A portfolio of members' work is circulated monthly—the whole thing being carried out under the cloak of anonymity (rather a transparent cloak this at times, for talent cannot be hid) and all contribute written criticism of the pictures.

LAUDS ASSOCIATES

"This Section may be said at once to be the most prominent and certainly one of the most difficult to run. All who have even taken part in theatricals in any way whatsoever will readily understand me when I say that much solid work has to go to the square foot of result. I feel sure that you will join with me in paying a high tribute to the officers and members of this Section which has during the past season provided no less than eleven entertainments, five of them open to the public and on a relatively large scale. That the section stands well with the public is evidenced by the fact that many a budding playwright makes earnest application to have his play produced under their auspices.

The Dramatic Sections splendid list of benefactions include: $200 was presented to the Social Service Board, $400 to the B.W.A. Residence Endowment Fund, $77 to the Entertainment Committee's Fund, $326 to the Foreign Women's Home, $401 (the result of C. Captain Egan's lecture on the Antarctic) to the Navy League and Union Jack Club.

A truly satisfactory budget. May the section continue to prosper.

NEEDLEWORK SECTION

"The Needlework Section began life with a high ideal and it has lived up to it. The object of the section has been to work for the good of the Association and, starting in with a little sale of work a couple of months after their inauguration, they raised sufficient funds after paying expenses to repay a loan of $100 to the Social Service Board and then carry on with their balance of $305.37, for materials. This enabled them to go ahead and seven months later they held a Christmas sale of work at HQ which, considering the scale on which it was carried out, was a phenomenal success for after paying expenses the sum total was no less than $1,422.99 sheer profit.

"The following benefactions have resulted from the work of the Section:

The Hospital and Department of the SSBD $100.
Headquarters Upkeep $100.
Foreign Women's Home $100.
Ladies Benevolent Society $100.
B.W.A. Residence Endowment Fund $400.

"To the Entertainment Committee each one of us owes a debt of deep gratitude in connection with the many delightful occasions when a large proportion of us have been able to meet and entertain our friends. I feel really hard and altruistic work is carried on very quietly and the machinery of their admirable organization never breaks.

The Committee's Balance Sheet appears in the Financial report.

"On inquiry as to what suggestion had been made at HQ for the greater comfort of members, I was met with the answer that a bit was the only improvement needed. Now I can only argue from this that HQ is in a very satisfactory condition.

"A number of bits and leans have helped appreciably to enhance the comfort of HQ. Gifts include a clock from Mrs. Spottiswoode, a clock from the Needlework Section, a desk presented by a few members who use the rooms constantly, a picture by Mr. J. Madison from the Art Section and a wooden frame from her exhibition from Miss Kiffin, and just a few days ago 2 large water colors, by Dr. Dillingham's brother, from Mrs. Billingham. Mrs. Stanish lent the rug in the tea room, Mrs. B. row the ice chest, Mrs. Gull the croquet-mallet and kerb in the Committee room and a picture in the office, Mrs. Peebles the oilings in the tea room, and Mearns, Weeks and Co. Ltd. a writing table and some tea tables.

"The Reading room at HQ is open daily to members and in addition to the "The Bystander and Life, which are purchased from library funds, periodicals are contributed by Mesdames Macleod, Alex. Samson, J. E. Trueman, Read, and E. H. McMeekin. The North China Daily News, The Shanghai Mercury, the Evening News and Lloyd's Weekly are all presented by their respective managers, to whom the Association is much indebted.

"There are 729 books in the Library, the subscription to which has been changed to $1 for 4 months, with, at present, no restrictions in regard to the number of books taken out or the period for which they are kept. 47 members subscribed regularly up to Feb. 1 and now subscribers are coming in well. Thanks to generous presents of books the library possesses a very fair proportion of recent works."

THE RESIDENCE REPORT

The report of the Residence Sub-Committee dealt in comprehensive style with the efforts of the committee to locate a suitable house and of the difficulties encountered. Having taken up the problem of building for themselves a site of six and a half mow, conveniently situated near the Bubbling Well tram terminus was found and estimates were drawn up aggregating Tls. 110,000 for a building to accommodate 20 to 25 residents. The necessity of an endowment fund was recommended and it was advised that the aid of British firms be sought. For this purpose circulars were printed. It was hoped to raise Tls. 30,000 from the firms, a building mortgage at 6 percent per annum to be arranged, to be replaced by debentures when the building was completed. Up to the present time the sum of Tls. 2,390 and $705 has been received from various firms and individuals and organisations. The matter rests (these are the views of members are asked for the guidance of the Committee.

Mr. Wilhelm if any report had been made.

AGAINST DOCTORS

The witness added that she does not go to doctors, as she had an antipathy for doctors since her baby's death. She added: Many friends advised me to consult a doctor. Later on, on the advice of Mr. Schuhl I went to see Dr. Pettit. Mr. Wilhelm spoke to me in July, 1922, at the American Drug Store. I asked him if he had heard anything about the shampoo. He said that he was at the laboratory and that he had heard of the analysis. He said that the shampoo was excessively

Mr. Moss objected.

Mrs. Ren said that she suffered pain, humiliation, and loss of her hair.

Mrs. Ren: I think that I will be satisfied with the Tls. 20,000 but I certainly had thought that it should be more.

The witness added that when she spoke to Mr. Miller he said that there were several bottles which were returned. He found alkali, he told her, but he could not identify her bottle, as it was not marked.

Mrs. Ren: He said, at that interview, that the shampoo did not contain coconut oil. He said also that it was not tested before it left the factory, and that if I would have applied to them at once they would give me 35 cents worth of a preparation which would heal me. He also added that he used it himself.

Mr. Moss, in his cross-examination, asked the plaintiff again to submit to medical examination.

Mr. Schuhl said that it had been denied by Court.

CAME IN 1920

The witness said that she was born in New York and came over here about December 15, 1920, and on December 31, 1920, she was married to Mr. Ren at St. Joseph's Church. In October, 1921, she had a baby, which died in January 1922 of emphysema. She was very worried. Dr. Clark attended the baby and being not satisfied with him she called Dr. Dunn, her physician. She attended the child's funeral and was in quarantine afterwards.

Mrs. Ren proceeded to say that the child was removed immediately after the death. She had other great shocks at that time, and besides the doctor said that the child was marked.

Mr. Moss: You had greater shocks at the time when your baby died? Yes, my father was ill.

Mr. Schuhl objected.

Mr. Moss: What were your other shocks? I refuse to relate them.

The Judge thought that the question should be answered.

Mr. Moss: What were they? One great shock was when I used this shampoo.

Mr. Moss then caused a flurry in the courtroom by asking Mrs. Ren a number of questions of a delicate nature that ended when Judge Lobingier interposed with a suggestion that he not continue the cross-examination in that strain.

ANOTHER WITNESS

Mrs. Betty Stewart, of Astor House, was then called. She said that she bought "American Drug Coconut Shampoo" in June last, and after applying it her hair turned red. Then she decided that she would try again and see what was the matter. It did not get better, so after trying four times she washed her hair. Dr. Bryson called one day and said "Good God...."

Mr. Moss objected.

The witness: He advised me to use oil and keep my hair in a towel for one night. I followed his advice and my hair was healed.

In response to Mr. Moss' question, if she ever had grey hair, Mrs. Stewart said that she had five grey hairs every month and used to pull them out.

Mrs. S. Tolles, Mr. S. T. Ren, and Miss Kitty Clement were called to testify to the state of Mrs. Ren's hair. All said that before June 1922 Mrs. Ren had plenty of hair of a dark color, and that afterwards its color was unrecognizable.

Mrs. S. Tolles testified that Mrs. Ren had beautiful hair before.

When travelling in America, the witness noticed that plaintiff never wore a hat which was unusual. Mrs. Tolles added that very often she "played" with Mrs. Ren's hair, and it appeared to her that there was no comparison between her friend's hair before the accident and now.

Mr. S. T. Ren said that early in the morning his wife told of found a bottle of shampoo in the bathroom in a corner and decided to use it, as he could not find soap.

Mr. Moss: No soap in the bathroom!

The witness proceeded to say that when he applied it he found that it turned his face and he yelled. Then Mrs. Ren rushed in and told him all about her own hair. Mrs. Ren had 70 to 80 percent more hair before.

Mr. Ren said that no report of the analysis was forwarded to him, but he heard that the shampoo was tested on a coole.

The witness added that at that time he lived at 23 Cornwell, and was the manager of the Wah Chang Co. He left the office in October 1922. That particular morning he got to the office at 9.30 a.m. as he could not leave the house on account of the face. It was red, and he could not put a stiff collar on, so a soft one was put on later.

Mr. Moss held that the witness applied shampoo on purpose.

Mr. Ren: I did not do it on purpose.

Then Mr. Ren proceeded to state that Mr. C. C. Chong came to dinner that evening. Mrs. Ren did not eat with them, as it was a business dinner. The guest left about 12 o'clock that night.

Mr. Moss suggested that the witness had no compassion on his wife or he would call a doctor.

Mr. Ren stated that he never did anything against his wife's wishes and he always asked her consent.

Miss Kitty Clement said that Mrs. Ren had a lot of hair of a dark color. After June, 1922, there was about half of it left. The witness also said that she saw Mrs. Ren comb her hair and saw how beautiful it was.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Miss G. Hartman was the first witness called at the afternoon session. She testified generally as to the condition of Mrs. Ren's hair prior and subsequent to using the shampoo.

Dr. Julian Pettit was called next as a medical expert by the plaintiff and testified to having examined Mrs. Ren's scalp three or four months ago. He said that he had found there had been a considerable loss of hair and that the color was of a brownish, dead tint with scattered grey hairs.

There was some inflammation over the scalp, Dr. Pettit said, and some eruption. Alkalides very frequently caused such a condition. Dr. Pettit also said that he had attended Mrs. Ren prior to that time and knew that she had a nice head of brunette hair.

Dr. Pettit was extensively cross-examined by Mr. Moss and in reply to a question by Mr. Moss said that he had drawn conclusions partly from the history of Mrs. Ren's case and partly by the examination.

Mr. Moss observed that a doctor was not competent to testify where he had followed such practice. Judge Lobingier over-ruled Mr. Moss on his contention.

Mr. Moss: "Would it be possible for an acid or alkali to burn so deeply into the roots of the hair and yet not scar the scalp permanently?" "It is quite possible."

"What causes hair to turn grey?"

"The hair is fed from the circulation. It gets the oil and so on from the system. If the circulation is not normal it would cause the hair to turn grey."

Dr. Pettit, in answer to further questions, said that an acid could burn to the roots and leave scars. When he had examined Mrs.

Ren's scalp he found her hair to be of a dead color. In Mrs. Ren's case, he said, the general condition of the hair and scalp might have been of some months' duration. Mrs. Ren's scalp was affected more on the crown of the head.

FALLING HAIR

Upon Dr. Pettit's assertion that a 2 percent solution of alkali was enough to do harm, Mr. Moss asked if he had ever heard of Dr. Shamborg's work on skin diseases. Dr. Pettit said he had not.

Mr. Moss: "Have you ever had any instances of alkalies injuring the scalp?"

Dr. Pettit: "I have had several instances."

Dr. Pettit then explained that there were several causes for falling hair such as old age, improper nutrition, anxiety, typhoid fever and dandruff.

Mr. Schuhl asked if anxiety would cause eruptions on the scalp. Dr. Pettit answered in the negative.

The last witness called by the plaintiff was Mrs. T. K. Woo, 17 Sinza Terrace, the wife of a textile engineer employed by the Wah Chang Trading Company.

Mrs. Woo said that she had known Mrs. Ren for two years and was a personal friend. Last July she said Mrs. Ren had shown her blisters and scars on her scalp and she had noticed that she had lost considerable hair. She had seen her, she said, while Mrs. Ren was combing her hair. The blisters centered on the crown of her head. The hair was streaked and "very peculiar looking." Before that time she knew that Mrs. Ren had nice hair.

THE DEFENCE

The first witness called by the defence was Mrs. d'Aquino, a stenographer employed by the American Drug Company, who said she was present when Mrs. Ren called on Mr. B. A. Hehler, the manager, to complain about the shampoo.

Mrs. Ren had said that the shampoo had burned her head and caused her hair to turn grey, she said, but had made no offer to show her hair. About one-third of the preparation had been used, she said.

Mr. C. Harlism, a chemist, also employed by the American Drug Company, was the next witness. He testified that the bottle Mrs.

Ren returned had been brought to him, that he tested it by putting some on his finger and tasting it, and that it tasted in all ways just the same as any other shampoo. It was not unusually strong in alkali, he said.

Cross-examined by Mr. Schuhl, Mr. Harlism said that shampoo was still being sent to the retail store and its sale had not been stopped.

Mr. Schuhl submitted an advertisement appearing in The China Press in which the American Drug Company offered to exchange the old bottles of shampoo for those of the new formula.

Mr. Harlism also said that if the shampoo remained in the scalp for a half-hour or so it might cause a slight reddening of the skin, but it would have no injurious effect on the scalp. He had used it himself, he said.

Mr. Schuhl asked if the shampoo was tested before leaving the factory.

"Yes," Mr. Harlism said.

"On the heads of coolies?"

"No. We do not employ coolies for that purpose," Mr. Harlism replied, amid the laughs of the courtroom.

THE LITMUS TEST

Mr. Edward W. Miller, a licensed pharmacist in charge of a department in the factory, was next called. He said that he had received about 2 dozen bottles of the shampoo following Mrs. Ren's complaint and had tested them on his tongue and with litmus paper. Some of them gave an alkali reaction so he sent them on to Mr. Pozniakoff for further tests. The shampoo had no effect on his finger and when he tasted it, it had a slight burning effect that passed in a few moments. There was nothing injurious in it, he said.

The last witness yesterday was Mr. E. Pozniakoff, in charge of the department which manufactured the shampoo. He testified that he had also tested the shampoo and finding a slight reaction had neutralized it and mixed it with a new batch for re-bottling. All shampoo was tested twice before going to the retail store, he said, and none was found injurious.

Court then adjourned until 9:30 o'clock this morning when the defence will continue.

Anything is good enough until something comes along that's better. A good imitation pearl gains admiration until compared with the genuine. Then the difference is readily seen. Likewise with records. By the expertly trained ear, however quality is quickly detected.

Oil Company Wins Ship Damage Suit

(Reuter's Service)

Colombo, March 20.—The District Judge today delivered judgment in a case in which the British Petroleum Company of London sued the Crown for £60,000 damages to the steamer, British Ensign, owing to alleged neglect and carelessness of the Crown.

The judge held that the steamer was berthed in a dangerous place owing to insufficiency of water and the nature of the harbor bottom. He overruled an argument that the Ceylon Government could not be sued as representing the Crown and also an argument that Colombo harbor was open water into which ships entered at their own risk.

N.Y.K. MAY PUT NEW PASSENGER LINERS ON PACIFIC

Clyde Firms Sounded On Terms For Building Fleet

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 20.—The Liverpool Journal of Commerce states that the shipbuilders of the Clyde have been sounded with regard to a prospective big order for the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, which, if it succeeds in securing a substantial subsidy for which it is negotiating with the Japanese Government, will be prepared to order from the Clyde a fleet of liners of 23,000 tons with a speed of 18 knots to compete with the fleet of the Canadian Pacific Company in the Pacific.

It is assumed that, if the Nippon Yusen Kaisha carry out the scheme, the Canadian Pacific Company will also enter the market for new boats with a view to retaining preeminence in the Pacific. The Clyde firms will be prepared to build at a minimum profit but the big rise in price in the ship plates section, etcetera, will swell the contract prices.

It is reliably learned that two motorboats have been ordered by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha from the Clyde, of 10,000 tons deadweight. The engines will be fitted locally.

Would Give Agenda To Dominions First

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 20.—In the House of Commons today at question time, Mr. Bonar Law said he hoped that the list of the subjects to be included in the agenda of the Imperial Economic Conference would be settled in consultation with the Governments of the Dominions and India in time to allow the interests concerned in various parts of the Empire to consider them before the Conference met.

It was contemplated that the Conference would include representatives of the Colonies and Protectorates but the form of representation had not yet been settled.

Invisible Speakers—And Hearers

IT MUST be that the more general use, almost everywhere, of the radio as a means, not of communication, but of broadcasting from central stations, in the form of speeches and sermons, the opinions and views of those to whom the public will listen, has impressed the need of extreme care in the preparation of such addresses, comments the Christian Science Monitor. He who speaks to an invisible audience is in much the same position as one who writes his message and sends it broadcast to be read by those with whom he can hope to have no personal contact, and those to whom he is denied the privilege of explaining, otherwise, just what he intends or seeks to convey. And those who "listen in," like those who read the passages of a book, a magazine or newspaper, perhaps feel the lack of opportunity which association, in the environment of the speaker, would afford for a better understanding.

What the printing press has done for the written word, the broadcasting device of the radio has done for the spoken word. To the vast invisible multitude to whom the writer sends his considered message there has been added an unnumbered invisible audience which listens attentively, and perhaps hungrily, to the spoken word. What a tremendous influence, either for good or evil, is thus made available! What unavoidable responsibility does it place upon those appointed to preach or to preach, and upon those who arrogate to themselves the privilege of teaching or preaching!

It is the merest trifle evasion to insist that those who speak and those who write owe no consideration to their auditors and readers. It is not sufficient to contend that those who listen and those who read do so voluntarily, and that the message is intended only for those who receive it willingly. Of course those who sit occasionally or habitually under the more or less alluring influence of the radio may refuse to listen, just as the reader may lay down a book or newspaper whenever he is confronted by matter that he does not care to read. But the responsibility remains, nevertheless. Modern devices and their application have combined to carry these messages so far afield that those who broadcast can't them cannot hope to know even approximately what their influence will be.

But there is a safe and reasonable course. Truth and reason dictate that course as clearly as they dictate one's relations with those with whom he comes into daily and hourly contact. He who sends his message broadcast, by whatever means employed, should guard his words as carefully as he would be inclined to do were he addressing those whose absolute confidence he sought to gain and keep. There can be no two standards of truth, or even of sincerity. The space between the invisible writer or speaker and his great invisible audience may seem tremendous when counted in miles or leagues, but mere distance counts but little when the real responsibility is realized. It is interesting to contemplate the words of Milton and to speculate upon their application when he wrote: "Beholding the bright countenance of Truth in the quiet and still air of delightful studies."

Bedtime Stories

A Visitor In The Night
BY T. W. BURGESS

Herself a mother will not spare,
And naught is there she will not dare.
—Old Mother Nature.

The young Fox who was a prisoner of Farmer Brown's Boy thought that day never would end. He kept inside the box. Farmer Brown's Boy had fixed for him because somehow he felt safer there. All day he heard strange noises outside, but he didn't try to find out what made them. He didn't even peep out. He just lay there shaking with fright, and wishing and wishing for the darkness of night. He felt that when night came things would be different. Perhaps then he could get away.

Even after the Black Shadows had crept out from the Purple Hills across the Green Meadows to Farmer Brown's doorway and wrapped it in darkness the young Fox remained for a long time right where he was. You see, there were still strange noises from Farmer Brown's house. Then, too, once in a while Bowser the Hound came around to sniff. But at last all was quiet. There was no longer any sounds from Farmer Brown's house. Bowser the Hound had gone to bed in his own little house not far away. The young Fox crept to the doorway which Farmer Brown's Boy had cut for him in that box. He peeped out. Up in the sky the stars twinkled just as he had so many times seen them twinkle from his home in the Old Pasture. The young Fox was hungry. He was very hungry. You see, he had been too frightened to eat any of the food Farmer Brown's Boy had put out for him. But now he thought of that food. Somehow he felt safer in the blessed darkness of the night.

He was just about to creep out when his sharp little ears caught the faintest of sounds just back of the box. He drew back. He knew that there was somebody there. It must be an enemy. At least that is the way he felt, for it seemed to him that he no longer had any friends. So much had happened to him that day that he had lost all faith. And losing faith, he lost hope.

A shadowy form appeared just in front of the little doorway. The young Fox sprang back. Then his keen little nose caught a scent that made him tingle all over. It was the scent of a particular Fox! It was the scent of his mother! Instantly the young Fox rushed out of that box. That shadowy form was waiting for him. It was his mother. It was Mrs. Reddy. She made no sound and she hushed the young Fox when he began to whine with joy. Very swiftly Mrs. Reddy looked him over to see that nothing had happened to him. Then she whispered to him to follow her, and, turning, stole swiftly away. The young Fox followed close at her heels. He had forgotten all about that dreadful chain. He didn't remember it until as he reached the end of it he was jerked up short.

His mother turned to see why he did not follow. Then she came back. At first she was puzzled. But it didn't take her long to understand what the trouble was. Her young son was held by that long, shiny thing. Mrs. Reddy made him lie down. Then she stretched herself beside him and began to gnaw at the chain. But it took Mrs. Reddy no time at all to discover that sharp and strong as her teeth were, they could not cut that chain. Then she followed it back to where it was fastened to the post. She saw at once that she could not get it free there. Back she came to the young Fox and examined the collar around his neck. She tried it with her teeth. It wasn't like that dreadful chain with nubs. She lay down beside him and went to work.

All this talk about Henry Ford as the next president of the United States leaves us only one observation—it will be a rattling good campaign if he does!

The Chinese Soldier

The first display of Chinese soldiers we ever saw was held on the foreshore on the Wu-chang side, where the cotton mills now stand, on the occasion of an inspection by some high official who had arrived, says a writer in the Central China Post. The men were drawn up in lines and made a brave show. There was a company of tiger troops armed with swords and carrying rattan shields on which a tiger's head was painted with glaring eyes and horrid fangs. They wore striped uniforms to which skirts were attached, and their business was to howl and carry through some strange gymnastics. Then there was a force of spearmen carrying bamboo poles some eighteen feet long with a spike in the end, and a tuft of horse hair dyed red and a small pennon. They looked fine, and reminded one of the phrase "terrible as an army with banners." These made a grand charge, but the spears wobbled so that here and there their points would catch the ground, and over went the warriors. There were also the matchlock men and the three-man gignals which were overgrown matchlocks. These were not asked to do anything as it was too dangerous seeing that the whole force had only been hired for the day according to ancient custom. They carried their gunpowder in a leather bag called a pig's stomach belted to the waist like a Highlander's sporran, and the lighted match was a cord of coir wound round the hand and held between the forefinger and thumb. The danger was that, in loading, the match might come into contact with the powder and up in the air would go the soldier matchlock and all. Some years after in the country we came across a camp where the men were being trained in musketry. A shallow trench had been dug about a hundred yards long and in the far end a paper target, about two feet wide, was set up. The weapons were tower muskets, the gunpowder was in a bag as before with a small knuckle of bamboo to measure the charge. The bullet was an inch-long slug of nailrod iron about half the diameter of the bore of the weapon, and when it was loaded care had to be taken to keep the muzzle elevated or the whole charge would run out. We were invited to try a shot and saw the bullet kicking up the dust a long way to the left, but we claimed a bull's-eye. This involved the inspection of the target where we found a hole and pointed to it in proof of our hit, but they said the hole had been there when the target was put up, and no one had hit it yet. Although bows and arrows had been discarded, except as a test of the skill of candidates for the position of officers, yet during the war with Japan a thousand aborigines passed through Hankow for the front armed with those weapons, and the people were delighted to see them for they believed the men who could win the war had arrived at last. What became of this force we never learned, but they were dressed in kilts and made a striking appearance.

We recall these matters to show how new the idea of militarism is to the Chinese people. They are tyros in the craft of handling armies and soldiers, and can hardly be blamed for making a mess of things. "The China Year Book" says: "The military profession has never been held in high esteem among the Chinese, and throughout their history the soldier has been looked upon with contempt. The cultivation of military science has always been forced upon the nation by more aggressive and belligerent neighbors." Under the Manchus, the Throne relied upon the Eight Banners, which consisted of the descendants of those who first conquered the country and were located in Peking and the garrison cities of the provinces. But they had long given up paying attention to military training and as a fighting force they were useless. Then there were the provincial forces known as the Li Yins, or Green Battalions, supposed to number 400,000 men. who were practically non-existent save on parade days as shown above. The first attempt to follow the foreign lead in this matter was made in 1895 when the Wu Wei Chun was formed under foreign instructors. That was in consequence of the war with Japan, but the whole force disappeared in the Boxer year. Then Yuan Shih-kai in 1905, set on foot a scheme to provide China with a national army of 36 divisions, or 360,000 foreign trained men, which at the time of the revolution amounted to 100,000 men with 524 guns, but that went off the rails in connection with the commotion and ceased to exist as a unit at the command of the Central Government. Its fragments are now in the hands of the various Tsuchuns and Commanders, who not only regard them as their private forces but have increased their numbers about a million and a half, although the real number is not known. The present efforts are all in the direction of getting rid of this crowd and starting afresh.

We saw a great deal of the Chinese soldiers in our travelling days as we were generally accompanied with a bunch of them as escort. In that capacity they were of no earthly use, since in the case of trouble they could not be relied upon to deal with trouble-makers. They were simply good-natured, liddable coolies whose presence was of value for their local knowledge and to carry messages. One time in the South of Hunan we met an old General who had served under Gordon and was anxious to show friendship to one of Gordon's countrymen. He said that those escorts which were changed from city to city were more of a danger than a protection, but he would tell of a couple of his men who would see us safe through to Yochow and out of the province. On starting we found our crowd increased by two of his clansmen each armed with a big sword and by way of firearms each had a rapier lantern with the chief's name on it. They were splendid fellows who struck to us like lightning right and day for a month. It ever there was a hostile word, or even an evil look, out came the sword and the biggest crowds would collapse. We thought there is some fine stuff in the Chinese ranks, and blessed be the name of Gordon!

International Labor And The Ruhr

While military action has been resumed in Europe, what have the labor organizations been doing? Early in January, a few days before the French troops arrived, the International Communist Party held a convention at Essen. The fourth world congress of the Third International had just closed at Moscow, and the Essen meeting in the center of the Ruhr district was designated as a protest against the impending occupation. Among the participants were representatives of the Communists in Germany, France, England, Belgium, Italy, Czechoslovakia, and Holland. But in each of these countries the Communist Party, as directed from Moscow, is rapidly losing strength, and so the convention found itself powerless. No general strike was voted, no rising of the proletariat. Only a manifesto to the workers in each country was issued, urging them to protest against the occupation of the Ruhr. No specific methods were prescribed.

And yet participation in this congress has cost the French Communists much. Even Marcel Cachin, leader of the party and editor of L'Humanité, has lost his immunity as a deputy and has been put in jail with the others. As the charge is conspiracy against the safety of the state, they will have to be tried before the Senate, a rather conspicuous tribunal for such inconspicuous individuals. Making them political martyrs to the state cannot help but revive the party. But if there were to be no Communists left at the next election, the voters could less easily be frightened than they were in 1919 by the "red specter" of Bolshevism.

Of greater import is the resolution against the occupation of the Ruhr, voted last December at The Hague by the Trade Union International, comprising 650 labor delegates, representing over 4,000,000 organized workers in twenty-four countries. While the political international organizations of the Socialists were split up by the war the Trade Union International has held together, and its future activities are of considerable importance. The Hague Congress, held Dec. 10-15, marked a departure from the pre-war policy in that this time non-labor organizations devoted to peace propaganda, including the League of Nations, had been invited to send delegates.

The old exclusiveness of Labor seems to be breaking down. It feels less and less confident of its own ability to prevent war through such measures as a general strike. Though the League of Nations, as at present constituted, does not meet the full approval of Labor, being called too ungovernable, and a league of peoples, its underlying policy of peace through political compromises was given a vote of support. And as the democratic ideal gains in Europe, the governments becoming more and more representative of all classes, Labor must in time feel more and more responsible for them and must ultimately admit that the official League delegates speak for the entire nations.

Indicative of this new attitude of Labor is the position of Hjalmar Branting, the Socialist Premier of Sweden. In his Nobel Prize address, delivered at Christiania last June, he referred to his Trade Union International, of which his home supporters are members, as one of the great bulwarks of peace. At the same time, as head of the Swedish Government he is now a member of the Council of the League of Nations. Could the Swedish workers be more directly represented? What has happened in Sweden could certainly happen in other countries.

Whether Labor, if it becomes the governmental party will be able to keep up its present enthusiasm for disarmament and peace is not certain. Will not conflicting economic interests drive the labor parties of the different nations into the same political rivalries? If, for instance, the British Labor Party should tomorrow form the Government, would its Near East or its Indian policy differ greatly from that of the Tories? The foreign program of the Bolsheviks often looks uncomfortable like that of the Tories.—Christian Science Monitor.

A Japanese Protest

(Christian Science Monitor)

Japanese residents in the United States have taken it upon themselves to give emphatic expression to their protest against what seems to be the defined policy of the government as it is represented in Congress, to exclude from entry all aliens who are not eligible to citizenship. They have accepted, of necessity, the recent decision of the Supreme Court denying citizenship to Asiatics under existing laws. But they are not inclined to let the matter rest there. They insist that the law itself should be changed, and it is declared to be the mission of the new Japanese Ambassador to bring about this desired statutory amendment.

The theory of the Japanese, at least as it is expressed by those now residing in the United States, is that their nationals should be placed upon the same plane of eligibility to citizenship as that accorded to the immigrants from European countries. They make a more or less convincing brief in defense of their claim to equality with, if not actually to intellectual superiority over, some of those nationals who have enjoyed a privilege denied to them. They do not deny that it is in America that they see the door of hope which they believe should be opened to what they declare to be people of a progressive and forward-looking race. They none too modestly call attention to the development, industrially and educationally, of their own country within recent years, perhaps not unreasonably offering this as a pledge of their fitness to be ranked as at least the equals of some of those whom the people of the United States have regarded with solicitude.

Abstractly considered, the problem is not one which would be looked upon as difficult of solution. Concretely regarded, it seems to present many difficult complications. It is an ambitious, if not a courageous, undertaking for one nation to set about it deliberately to force upon another several of its established internal policies. Japan naturally sees in the expressed intention on the part of the United States to exclude all nationals who cannot qualify as candidates for citizenship under existing laws the emphatic expression of a purpose to tighten, rather than relax, the regulations excluding Asiatics. If their campaign is successful, it must accomplish a complete reversal of established policies, and it is quite apparent that this reversal, if brought about, would be in direct opposition to the best judgment of perhaps a majority of the American people, and certainly in disregard of the sentiment and reasonable prejudices of the people of the Pacific coast states.

It is not unlikely that the determination of these Japanese now in the United States to force the issue at the present time is due to a realization that the tendency, both of the Government and the people, is to make more stringent the restrictions upon alien immigration, no matter what its origin. The Japanese have not been alone in contributing to America's problems in this respect. And now it seems probable that in the future, even more than now, the purpose will be to make the restrictive barrier difficult to pass. It will be interesting, if the newly chosen Ambassador from Japan and those whom he represents are determined to make the issue which they have raised an international one, politically, to know just what persuasive arguments he intends to present.

places in life, just through their ability to look at the troubles of the day as from the outside, and to dictate to themselves the right sort of action.

But when the dramatic sense leads a person to play up everything for its effect on someone else, then the dramatic sense is perverted.

If your first thought is, what would the crowd say if I shall do so and so—you are bordering on a dangerous kind of dramatics.

If you want applause at any cost, you are not really true and sincere.

Real, not assumed, sincerity is the greatest charm a person can possess.

Just let it be suspected once that you are acting a part and are not truly what you pretend by your fair words or your acts, and you have lost your greatest asset, whether in business or society.

The only way to act truth is to be really pure and true at heart, to true that even your decision against your friend or your expressed dislike, which might hurt another, is forgiven because of your very sincerity.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspnea and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable. Advice To The Lovelorn

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE JEALOUS GIRL

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I am twenty and a dancing instructor. I met a young man who comes to my place with a girl I do not like at all. He says he would not come if it were not for me.

I told his friend that I didn't want to have anything more to do with him while he bothers with this girl, and that I was going to talk it over with him. But his friend told me not to, as it would make him feel bad. The last couple of times he has been down I have showed a different attitude toward him.

He does not realize that I like him—in fact, I have fallen in love with him. He took me home one night and he claimed he liked me very much, and all his friends say the same. Now he sees the change in me and wonders what it all is about.

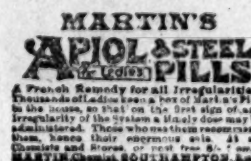

Now, Miss Fairfax, do you think that I am doing right by acting this way? A. P.

Why shouldn't this young man bring a girl with him when he comes to dance at the place where you work? As one of the assistants you are not supposed to dance exclusively with one person, but to divide your dances so that those who really need instruction can have it. If the man took every one of your dances, don't you suppose there would be a complaint? You are not paid to amuse yourself. Why should the man either cost you your position or stand around doing nothing while you dance with others? Have you a right to criticize the other girl and pass sentence on her? She was his friend before you were. There are those who criticize your profession. Be more tolerant and less jealous.
